

Life Paths Promising Scholar Award

Life Paths Promising Scholar Award

We are offering four scholarships for presentations that focus on under-served or marginalized communities. Scholarships include conference registration and a $200 housing allowance for people who travel to Nashville from outside the area. We will pay scholarship winners a $200 housing reimbursement after a submission of receipt from a hotel, AirBNB, or other forms of housing is received.

Eligibility is limited to current students (Undergraduate, Masters, and PhD students), post-baccalaureate fellows, and post-doctoral fellows.

Scholarship winners are expected to attend the entire conference. The deadline to apply has been extended to November 14, 2022, 11:59 PM CST.

Please also submit your abstract to the conference submissions page. The following form is only to be considered for the award. People who wish to present should also submit their proposal through the conference submission portal.

Please fill out the following form to apply for the Life Paths Promising Scholar Award.

First/Given Name *	<input type="text"/>
Last/Family Name *	<input type="text"/>
School/Affiliation *	<input type="text"/>
Email *	<input type="text"/>

Sample Application for Life Paths Promising Scholar Award

- Eligibility Confirmation: Undergraduate Student
What is your current status? * Graduate Student
 Post-Baccalaureate Fellow
 Post-Doctoral Fellow

If none of the above, you are not eligible for this award.

Letter of Application: Please provide a 2-3 page letter that describes you, your current professional status, your advisor, the project you will present, and how attendance at ResilienceCon will promote your professional goals. Additionally, please identify which marginalized or underserved community or communities that your research focuses on.

Upload Your Letter of Application *

Allowed Upload Formats: .doc, .docx, or .pdf

Upload

Please direct any questions you may have to Liz Taylor, lifepaths@lifepathsresearch.org

SUBMIT FORM